Great start to the new season for Thanet's Camera Club

After a brilliant summer of club outings we welcomed Nik Mitchell as our first guest speaker of the new season. Nik is well known for his environmental campaigning and explained how his interest in the great outdoors began. Some fantastic images to inspire everyone to get outdoors with their cameras.

Our second guest was Anthony Penrose, son of the legendary photographer Lee Miller whose exhibition had just opened at Tate Britain (until 15 February 2026). The capacity audience were kept enthralled as Anthony provided a fascinating insight into the craft of photography and a "back stage" glimpse of the treasured archives of Lee Miller.

Club competitions have so far attracted record numbers of entries, with high standards from the Advanced and Intermediate Groups. (See attached photo: Harvest Mouse, by Andy Shaw).

Our excellent new website showcases the latest images, competition results and much more, as well as details of how to join. Visit: www.isleofthanetphotographicsociety.com
